FOREWORD

For four years we seniors have worked toward a definite goal. Having now attained this goal, we discover that the goal does not mark finis to our efforts. It is now that our real labor begins. As graduates we are standing on the threshold of the most important years of our lives. These decisive years ahead will shape not only our future but also the future of the entire world.

Ours is the first class to graduate in the second half of the twentieth century. War, revolution, and depression marred the first fifty years of this century. We who will spend the fruitful years of our lives in the last half of the century must willingly take upon ourselves the task of making this troubled world a better place in which to live; we must mold a world where people can live in peace and harmony with their neighbors. To insure the growth of peace is our opportunity, and to make sure that the mistakes of the past are not repeated is our responsibility.

There is a way to make these aspirations come true, and it is our duty to find it. In our search we shall be aided by our hope for a better way of life, by our faith that it can be found, and by our determination that we shall expend our best efforts in cherishing it when it becomes a reality.

"SECURITY IS MORTALS' CHIEFEST ENEMY"

The wish for security is one of the great human drives. The child is reluctant to wander far from the security of his home. The youth's primary concern is the stability of his education or his job. An inclination to remain secure prevents the business man from speculating or making changes in his business ventures. The elderly person dotes on the security of a permanent home and a constant way of life. Security often safeguards life, health, and property. Too strong a desire for security, however, suppresses new experiences and adventures, and the acquisition of new knowledge and ideas. An overwhelming desire for security in adolescence prevents liberal education and broadening of viewpoints.

We who are about to terminate four years of high school education must be prepared to perform the tasks and meet the challenges of adulthood in a democracy. We must be liberal, we must be open minded, we must be unbiased in all our thoughts and all our actions. Only thus can we serve our country, our God, and all of humanity in such a way that our efforts will form an indelible contribution to the betterment of the world.

We cannot do this if security is our paramount desire. Only by giving trial to new ideas and by compromising can we uphold our democratic principles. Only by facing danger willingly, unafraid, and objectively can we avert threats to the peace and welfare of the world. Our desire for security must be overshadowed by our patriotism, our righteousness, and our courage.

Humanity's greatest benefactors have been those men who abandoned security to seek new conquests and new goals. If our lives are fettered by a strong desire for security, our potentialities will never be developed to the utmost. We, too, must abandon security. We must receive new ideas with open minds, and we must be willing to risk all, our lives if necessary, to uphold and strengthen the arm of liberty. Thus will we guard our American heritage.

CLASS HISTORY

On a bright September morning in 1947, three hundred timid yet eager boys and girls entered the halls of Taunton High School for the first time. Now, as June, 1951, draws near, these same young people are preparing to graduate. The intervening years have passed quickly. Joyful or sad, profitable or wasted, these years mark the transition from childhood to young adulthood and encompass a period of our lives different from any other we shall ever know.

Looking back, we find that certain events and individuals are bright threads in the tapestry of our high school career. Our first class officers, for example, very capably conducted us through the freshman and sophomore years. These officers were Sherwood Higgins, Harold Johnston, June Kelly, and Tom Sawyer. In the course of the year we took new subjects, made new friends, studied, worked, and played; and in June we felt satisfaction in having completed successfully our freshman year.

Almost before we knew it, we were sophomores, inclined to chuckle at the bewilderment of the freshmen as they stumbled up the wrong stairways and asked confused traffic officers near 107 the route to 315! That year we adopted the "New Look". The girls, bewitching in ankle-length ballerina skirts, flitted through the corridors in ballet-style slippers. The boys, not to be outdone by the girls, affected dazzling ties with large Windsor knots, and flashy socks.

With pleasant anticipation of a happy year ahead, we returned to school as juniors in September, 1949. Classes became more interesting as we progressed into advanced subjects. The chemistry lab, for example, bustled with activity as industrious scientists tested guided missiles and created new gases, which sometimes overcame the would-be chemists. The highlight of the year, of course, was our prom. Under the aegis of Mrs. Skwarlo and Mr. Pelczarski and with the assistance of Miss Corrigan, our able committee transformed the assembly hall into a Chinese garden, enchanting in its beauty. Our capable officers, Mary Strojny, June Kelley, Henry Kelleher, and William Graban, led the grand march, as handsome a one as the school had ever seen. An unexpected feature of the prom occurred when a perambulating cat stepped on a high tension wire and inadvertently thrust the entire city into darkness! Undaunted, the dancers and the faculty responded to the emergency, and dozens of candles helped to light the school and to cast a pleasant glow over the entire evening. Surely, this was a prom no one is likely to forget!

When September rolled around again, we really had arrived! We were SENIORS! Then names began to make the news. Henry Kelleher and Mary Strojny during the summer had been delegates to Boys' State and Girls' State respectively. Class elections resulted in a fine slate of officers: Mary Strojny, Richard Trucchi, Ann Walsh, Harold Johnston. On the gridiron we cheered for Captain Reilly, Scully, Silvia, Texeira, Borges. We thrilled at each game as we cheered with Ginny Scully, who led her cheerleaders with inspired liveliness, and we applauded Nancy Perron, who directed a handsome corps of majorettes. When cadet appointments were made, everyone felt satisfied that Bob Rec was a good choice for major and that he had a fine group of officers in his command. On the basketball court we were proud of our stars, Loeffler and Byrne, who helped Taunton High make a good record this year. Seniors who made news when they presented a panel discussion on safety and later made a broadcast over station WPEP were Joan MacDonald, Priscilla Palmer, Kathleen Grenier, Marlene Gozzelino, Laurel McGregor, Ann Watson, Ethel Haglund, Neil Peterson, and Herbert Deutsch. The introduction of Driver-Training in the spring offered a twofold opportunity to lucky seniors: the chance to learn to drive and the privilege of being out of school on lovely spring mornings.

In April a decorative scene met the eye of the beholder as he glanced at the colorful booths displayed at the Spring Bazaar, sponsored by the Student Council. Gay trinkets from France, cakes, aprons, cards, and cosmetics were only a few of the numerous articles on sale. The concert by the Band, the Glee Clubs, and the dance groups was enjoyable, the whole affair being profitable as well as entertaining. Future classes will enjoy the attractive stage curtains purchased by the Student Council with the proceeds of this very successful project.

As spring approached, two topics engaged the interest of all seniors: the color of the caps and gowns, and the Senior Prom. It was decided by unanimous vote that the girls would wear white and the boys blue at graduation. The Senior Prom, colorfully carrying out the theme of Stardust, was a gay occasion which will be remembered with pleasure as we leave the hallowed halls and classrooms of Taunton High School.

Thus we end one phase of our lives. As Graduation Day draws near, like Janus of old, we look back with nostalgia upon our happy school days and look forward with pleasant anticipation to the years ahead, years which will be enriched by our experience in Taunton High School.

"I can make no answer but thanks, and thanks and ever THANKS!"

"We are advertised by our loving friends!"

CLASS WILL

We, the Class of 1951, being sound in body and mind, do hereby declare this our last will and testament and we do make the following bequests:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY, our sincere thanks and appreciation for the patience and guidance given us during our four years at Taunton High School.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1952, the responsibility and privilege of being models to the three underclasses.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1953, our advice that homework is done faster and more efficiently when free from all interruptions, such as the radio and television.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1954, our reassurance that their four years at Taunton High School will be what they make them.

SHERWOOD HIGGINS—To Stew Parker, my unusual success with the fairer sex and my belief that variety is the spice of life.

PEGGY RICHMOND—To a fortunate junior, my ability to look at an algebra problem and make a snap judgment—"I don't know how to do it."

BOBBY BYRNE—To the basketball team, hoops nearer to the floor.

JEANNE LAMARCHE and KATHLEEN GRENIER—To any two close friends, our ability to talk sign language across a room.

NEIL PETERSON—To a member of the Junior Class, my voice, which can always be heard.

BUNKY JOHNSTON—To a member of the Class of '52, my courage in wearing bright shirts in spite of all the kidding of classmates.

FREDDY MEDAS—To some unfortunate junior, my two by four desk which is supposed to hold eight by ten books.

JACQUELINE LAMARRE—To the occupant of my seat next to the door in 107, my speed in reaching the cafeteria.

DAVE SCULLY—To Vin St. Pierre, my regular seat in study room.

MARY RAMSDEN—To Joan Kelley, '54, my mischievous spirit wrapped around the covers of a most dear "Latin Book."

MARY STROJNY—To my sister Florence, '53 my ability to make the most of four years.

BILL LOEFFLER—To Dick Parker, the privilege of being one of the tallest boys at Taunton High School.

HELEN FOSTER—To some unlucky soul, my nervous tremors during driver-training.

FRED SYLVIA—To some musically inclined junior, my place in the band.

LAUREL MCGREGOR and ANN WATSON—To the Editor of the Tauntonian, the headaches and worries of meeting a deadline.

BARBARA CASEY—To Virginia Pires, '53, my place in the cafeteria with the hope that she will have as much fun as I have had.

LORRAINE PINHEIRO—To Natalie Duarte '54, all the fun that I haven't had.

ELEANOR RINDERER—To some up-and-coming junior, my French vocabularies and the endless homework.

VIRGINIA SCULLY—To Janet McIntyre, my responsibility of "cracking the whip over the cheerleaders."

JOAN SHEARING—To some pleasingly plump junior, my ability to eat and eat and eat.

JEREMIAH RAPOSA—To some ambitious junior, my mechanical drawing board with the hope that he will use it more than I ever did.

EDWARD AMARAL—To some future art student, my endless task of making flowers for the school play.

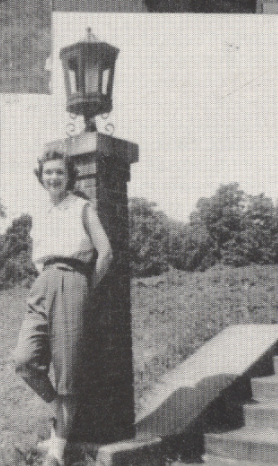

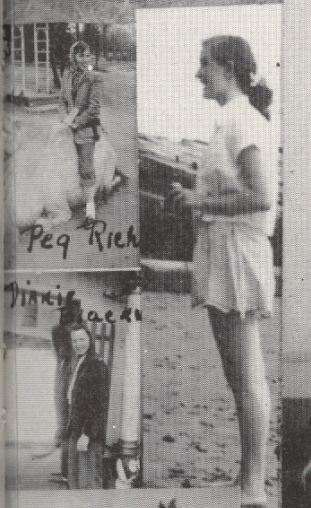

MARLENE GOZZELINO—To Lorraine Cote, all my maps for the longest routes from one room to another.

PROPHECY

While I was on a trip around the world in the year 1961, my thoughts suddenly turned to my former classmates at good old Taunton High School. What had become of those who had graduated in the famous class of 1951? I was flying over Scotland at the time, and my mind wandered to, of all things, the witches in Macbeth. An idea struck me. Bong-g-g! Ah, the witches could tell me what had happened to my old friends. Quickly I turned to the air line hostesses to inquire when the plane would land. Who were they but Audrey Farland and Tootie Ellis! We chatted for a few minutes, and they informed me that Robert Rusconi and Melvin Bernard were piloting the plane. Tootie said the plane was a "Handren Halo", built by Dick Handren at his huge airplane factory. The original lighting for the plane had been created by those electrical geniuses. Melvin Bates, George Pratt, and Winthrop Richardson. One of the features these master minds had designed was an electrical contraption whereby, in case of storm, an umbrella arose over the plane and kept the rain off. Audrey gave me a magazine to peruse by the flickering lights, which coquettishly faltered, dimmed, then came on again with increased brilliance. Ah what would those three electrical wizards think up next! In the magazine I saw a particularly interesting exhibit of paintings by the Mesdemoiselles Martha Sutton and Wilma Swift, with an explanatory article written by Peggy Unsworth and Maureen Urton. At last the plane landed and, with my trusty THS copy of Macbeth as guide. I began my search for the informative witches. Weeks later, still searching, I entered a bowling alley for momentary relaxation. At one of the twenty alleys I saw sailors Paul Brady, Virgilio Perry, and Joseph Pacheco. When they heard my quest, they directed me to the proprietors of the alleys, Warren Smith and Charles Pires. They gave me a map drawn by draftsman John Cananze, and printed by the map company of Barbara Reed and Eleanor Cloutier. Following the chart very closely, I soon found myself in front of the witches' cave.

I perceived, peering out through the slats of pink Venetian blinds, three ugly faces. Almost unconsciously, I started humming the '51 hit, "That Face." Suddenly I was interrupted by the high pitched voice of one of the crones:

"Hail, you from the famous Class of '51."

"You know me?" I asked in sudden disbelief.

"We know all, disbeliever," she cackled.

"Well," said I, with just a small peek at page ten of my THS Macbeth, but making slight changes to suit my needs, "if you can look into the seeds of time, and say which grains have grown and which have not, speak then to me."

Unexpectedly she shrieked, "Behold, then," and one of the other witches threw into a cauldron a handful of herbs—and there before my eyes appeared a lighthouse rising out of the sea. Floundering off some distance to the left of it was a huge ship. The lighthouse keeper's wife, formerly Cleo O'Hara, was crying for help for the unfortunate victims. Ah, help was coming; at incredible speed Admirals Bob McGovern, John Andrews, Bob Rec, and Arthur Leat were clanging their ships to the rescue. Then I saw Nurses Jeanne Lamarche, Dorothea Field, Lorraine

Ferreira, Irene Slavick, and Jean Silvia, all attired becomingly in special uniforms on which were painted appropriate hospital scenes by artists Edward Amaral and Carver Mann. Ah, all were safely on the rescue ships. Slowly the scene faded from my sight.

As the witches made a weird incantation, figures again took form in the swirling smoke. I saw a P.T.A. meeting in session. A gracious matron, the former June Kelley, president of the organization and mother of six children, was just thanking the guest speakers, Nurses Natalie Zoslosky and Mary Carney, for their splendid lecture on teaching a six month old child to be career-minded. Looking around the audience, I saw many familiar faces. There were Nancy Dixon, Leanne Joubert, Nancy Isenor, Pat Kenney, Dorothy Woodward, Rita King, and Anna Mae Doherty. They were apparently all happily married and were surrounded by a multitude of children of varying sizes. Kindergarten teachers Violet Leonard and Lucille Antine were comforting a small child who was momentarily separated from his mother, the former Mary Lou Gonsalves. A hush came over the audience as the next speaker, the former Nancy Perron, now happily married to a frog farmer, stepped forward. Her topic was "The Life and Loves of Polenchenplop Crocodiles." As the scene became fainter and fainter, I glimpsed a clog dance exhibition, performed by Priscilla Henry and Marlene Cozzelino, who were assistants of physical education teachers Betty Smith and Diane Blackwell.

A rising mist caused the meeting to fade, but another vision took its place. A jungle arose out of the mist, and native drums beat their unending tattoo. Missionaries Helen Foster, Merlyn Jennings, and Joyce Bailey were nursing fliers Tom Sawyer, Neil Peterson, and Edward Simmons, and soldiers Dick Trucchi and Fred Buzcek, whose plane had crash-landed in the dense tropical growth. In vain they had tried to escape that relentless tax collector, George Tatro, who stood over them with a tax warrant. Suddenly a safari came into view led by Dick Lincoln, florist, who was still trying to collect Journal money, and his assistants, Dolores Correia and Ethel Mae Haglund. On off days from money grubbing, they would search for the elusive blue rose of Bengali. Justina Ferreira accompanied the caravan as interpreter. The very efficient quartette of secretaries on the trip were Barbara Casey, Frances Bartel, Genevieve Caron, and Lorraine Almeida. Suddenly hostile natives attacked this little group, but were arrested in mid-attack by electricians Ray Dion, Ernest Cardoza, Ray Devlin, and Jeremiah Raposa, who focused on them their electrical anti-skirmish eye. The vision was misting over, misting, misting . . . , and the last words I heard were those of a parrot trained by that top advertising genius, Bill Lovely, "William Emsley, television expert; William Emsley, television expert, arwk, arwk—".

More herbs, more mists, and wide open spaces formed before my wondering eyes. A sign painted by the celebrated artist, Harry Carey, proclaimed it to be the State of Texas. Ah, there is a small town, and there is the exotic residence of those great prune ranchers, "Lone" Jack Milligan, Nelson "Trigger" Jones, and Bill "Jump-Along" Graban (so-called because he is always one jump ahead of his competitors). The town, whose worthy mayor is Fred Hochberg, showed sign of having had a boom recently. It seems that Walker Swift, in making a geological survey, discovered white oil on the farm of Ralph Charwood. The news was flashed all over the world by telephone operators Barbara Vaughan, Wilma Rivard, and Priscilla Palmer. People flocked from near and far. Alas, the boom was short-lived, for druggist Leo Senechal and his secretaries, Lorraine Nunes and Ruth Dias, determined that the oil discovered had oozed from a large castor oil bottle which the Indians had buried. Dick Schultz, industrial engineer and owner of the local factory, was quoted by newspaper woman Edith Brailey as saying "You have to get up oily to fool Walker." On vacation in his peaceful little spot was Harold Johnston, president of the large business firm "Undertakers, Inc.", whose slogan was "People are dying for us." The poor man had finally developed a phobia against bright clothes, feeling that it made his business less attractive. His nurses, Joan Shearing, Anna Bumila, and Clare Champagne, thought him cured at last, but unfortunately Peg Richmond, interior decorator de luxe, remodelled his summer estate, with an ingenious decor, which included draperies made from shirts worn by Bunky in high school. The adult Bunky had a reaction on beholding these monstrosities and collapsed at the feet of his secretaries, Muriel Prunier and Nancy Sullivan. On this pathetic sight, I closed my eyes.

Gaining courage from my momentary visionary respite, I gradually opened my eyes only to behold a large green building in the middle of the Sahara Desert. A tricky sign, obviously the work of commercial artist Leona Bourque, proclaimed it to be the "Ann Watson and Eleanor Rinderer Secretarial School for Arabic Arabs". Their staff was composed of Arlene Rose and Carol Rose (to whom an Arab was facetiously saying they were the first roses to grow in the Sahara sands), and also Ann Burke, and music supervisor Mary Ramsden. Secretaries Elizabeth Pronicki, Rose Siegel, Therese Coderre, and Beatrice Black were all prominent visitors to this famous school, whose building had been designed by Charles Sylvia, architect.

My heart started pounding with fright when my dress was suddenly seized by one of the witches who demanded to know where I had bought such a creation. I told her that it has been designed by the famous Jeannette Lopes and had been made by outstanding dressmakers, Elaine McMahon and Pauline Vincent. I uttered a mild shriek as the crone yanked at my hair, asking the name of my hair stylist, whom I revealed to be none other than Dottie Goff and Catherine Drumgoole, creators of the "Dottie-Cathy Knob".

Since the witches were inquiring into what I considered my private affairs, I decided to mind their business for awhile and asked them who had designed their modern cave, with its bay window on the bay. They said it had been done by famous carpenters, John Fountain, John LaCombe, and Henry Carol, but it had never been completed because one had called the other a hammerhead and the remark had been nailed as a pervarication. They had returned to America on a ship built in the Donald Nevius Boat Yards and manned exclusively by members of the Class of '51. The ship was called the "Half Century and One", having been named by the Class's mathematical genius, James Borges. Among the crew were James Allen and Richard Beaulieu. Former Waves, Eleanor Simmons and Vivian LaFleur, had charge of operations dining room. Dan Reilly, fireman extraordinaire, ruled the below deck crew, who were kept in high spirits by the culinary prowess of the ship's cook, Charles Smith.

The next moment the sound of a radio came forth from the witches' cave. I heard the renowned voice of the sports announcer, Lloyd Lakin, telling the world about the phenomenal baseball records achieved by Edmund Teixeira and Robert Larkin. They were both playing for the "Twinkly Toes Ball Club", owned by James Perry. Suddenly the announcer's voice took on a tone of added excitement as he announced a special bulletin—William King and John Silvia had created a revolutionary automobile design with the roof located at the sides of the car, the windows on top, and a double engine in the rear. It was called the "Two-Motored Road-Leaver". Contracts had been signed, giving Hector Marrotte and Kenneth Mavo exclusive repair rights. It was announced that if a truck model should ever be made, only Francis Conaty and his descendants to the eighteenth generation could drive it. Rights to the car's radio repairs were awarded to Harry Leonard.

As the radio voice ceased, one of the witches rekindled the cauldron fire, and I beheld Pat Chamberlain, owner of the swank "Talk Club", featuring tap dancers Beverly Terry and Beverly Slicer, doing the "Beverly Boola". Soloist Betty Correia was accompanied by the band of Paul Ziegler, Alfred Sylvia, and trombonist Barbara Thomas.

The scene shifted, and I beheld Shera Lawson and Louise Harrington, research chemists, bent with great concentration over a test tube and perilously near a Bunsen burner. They had worked for years for a cure for homework, but had never found a solution, much to the chagrin of incoming THS students, but to the joy of Professors Fred Medas, Mary Mirka, and Shirley Cramer. Their greatest discovery had been the elimination of Blue Monday, which had been accomplished by starting the work week on Tuesday. Over in one corner of the laboratory, I saw their technician, Joan MacDonald, reading the stock brokers' handbook by William Loeffler, with photographs by Marjorie Rusconi, and published by printer William Lynds. The door was suddenly pushed open, and secretaries Joan Brazil, Sophie Ferreira, and Ann Walsh came in with the dramatic announcement that Sherwood Higgins had just made his first million dollars. Sherwood, who had no mean reputation as a gadgeteer, had celebrated the event by creating the Walkie Talkie Sewing Machine, which could take the children for a walk, teach them to talk, and sew their clothes all at the same time. His self-closing, invisible safety pin was on the market, financed by millionaires Bobby Byrne, Edward Guzik, and Henry Hall. Frank Leca was head of sales distribution. In charge of operations were Albert Leal, Arlene Lima, Ruth Frost, Joan Craven, and Anita Begnoche, who, when working on the invisible pins, were forced to wear glasses furnished by Doctors Mary Lou Mallon and Mary Strojny.

Again the scene shifted. What's this I see before me? A rocket, posed against the slate grey sky, ready for the First Trip to the Moon! This rocket was the invention of Richard Gonzales and Bob Ferris. Unfortunately both these geniuses were suffering from colds and were unable to make this historic trip; therefore, Bob Smith and his secretaries, Phyllis Medeiros and Helen Soares, were in charge of operations. Two secret army officials, attired solemnly in black, arrived on the scene. Heroic Donald MacKenzie and Alan Davidson, who had cheerfully volunteered for this mission, were carried to the waiting space ship by Joseph LaBounty and Allan McIntire, navy wrestlers, and Ed Shein and Arthur Booth of the FBI. I can still hear the historic works of Donald Park, philanthropist, "There's absolutely nothing to worry about, ha, ha, ha, absolutely nothing". Nurses Charlotte Pinto, Dorothy Rivet, Katherine Briggs, and Mary Silva were ready to take charge of any sick "Moonvians" when the destination was reached. Pat Butler, chemistry teacher, who wrote the popular song, "I'm Moony about the Man in the Moon", was also to be a passenger. In the seat behind her were Ruth Donahue and Mary Lou Riley, scientists. On the ground waving farewell to this heroic group were secretaries Jeanette Demers, Elizabeth Zucco, Beverly Pennell, Arlyne Osenkowski, Catherine Duarte, and Catherine Fagan, all attired in white caps and gowns.

Ah, I saw the forms changing, and above the bubbling cauldron appeared a large circus tent. In the caged enclosure, the great animal trainer, Herbie Deutsch, was putting his elephants through their paces. High above, trapeze artists Kathleen Grenier and Patricia Hall performed death defying feats to astound the crowd below. The circus was owned by Henry Kelleher, who was enjoying his yearly income of 20,000 dollars, and managed by Caryl Morse and her assistant, Jenny Oliver. The midway came into view, and there was the inimitable knife thrower, Barbara Butler. Her two beautiful targets, Lorraine DuCharme and Joan Flynn, stood unflinchingly as the steel blades fell around them. Enthralled crowds, called in by barkers Freda Williams and Barbara Frost, watched magicians Veronica Flangheddy and Mary Ann Silver saw their partner, Janet Perry, in half. As I watched, I saw kindergarten teachers Lois Glynn and Veronica Wade lead their classes into the Wild West Show. Cowgirls Rose Gwozdz, Lorraine Pinheiro, and Lorraine Lamoureux entranced the audience with their western trick riding. They were accompanied by Joyce Woodward and her singing guitar. A trick ropist, Norma Cutner, was the star of the show. Horseback acrobats Maureen Galligan and Carol Dugan were other feature attractions. Joanna Amora and Jackie Lamarre proudly exhibited their Kentucky bred horses. Smoke again obscured my sight as these things also disappeared from view.

As from a distance, I heard the gentle lapping of waters and smelled the sweet scent of flowers. To my amazement, curtains of the cauldron mist parted, and there I saw beautiful shores of Hawaii. Poised on the water's edge, with weapon raised, was the international turtle spearer, Robert Ruby. Attracted by the sound of a motor boat, I glanced up and saw Ginny Scully gliding over the sunlit waters on a surf board. Navigating the boat ahead were the champion speed boat racers, Elaine Christenson and Anne Vargas. Waving to the trio from the shore were Elizabeth Zucco, Mona Roberson, and Patricia Morse, languidly cooled by the beautiful palms overhead. They were busily engaged in fashioning calabases from Hawaiian gourds. Farther up the beach were Edna Briggs and Theresa Furtado hunting rare shells to add to their million dollar collection. Suddenly out of the trees sprang botanist Peter Salamon, who ran wildly up and down shouting that after ten years' search he had finally seen the ape-ape foliage in Puohokamoia Gulch. Thrilled by his marvelous news, harpoon fishers Jeanne Doucette and Irene Perry ran up and congratulated Pete and twined floral leis about his neck. Joyously the group rushed to the plantation of David Scully and John Murray to tell them the exciting news. Dave and Jack had gone to Hawaii several years before to start a pineapple plantation. It was not until their first harvest, however, that the duo discovered that their pineapple was not a weapon of war. As the mists again rose, I saw in the distance Mary Brady and Delia Perry, picturesquely posed on their Bougainvillea-bowered house, their flaming Poinciana Regia tree outlined against the horizon.

All good things must end, and I reluctantly took my leave of the witches, for I had to return to my law practice. The first case on my calendar was the defense of Robert Galligan and Theodore Marcotte, who had gone into the interior decorating shop of Ellen Gornall and put $43,427.29 into the cash register, thus completely confusing the day's receipts. Ellen told her attorney, George Martin, and her two witnesses, Eileen Soitos and Laura St. Martin, that she would not have minded an even amount, but the sum put in seemed odd to her.

Soliloquizing on these happenings to my classmates of 1951, I could not avoid a Shakespeareanlike tinge:

*They have performed in measure, time and place,
So, thanks to all at once and to each one,
Whom we exhort e'en fuller life to make.*

LAUREL MCGREGOR

*"To thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."*

As we graduate, there is no better advice for us to follow than the aforesaid counsel given by Polonius to his dear son, who was about to leave the shelter of the Danish court for the cosmopolitan world of Paris. Like Laertes, we graduates are facing a future bounded by unknown horizons. As we stand poised for our first step into the world beyond the school, it is wise that we heed the advice of the poet.

The popular trend in the fast-moving world of today is merely to follow the crowd, regardless of the direction it takes. This willingness to follow results in the loss of personal initiative and is partly responsible for the chaotic condition of the world. We must abjure blind adherence to the mob and recapture a sense of obligation for our individual acts. Many of us do not realize the potential power we shall wield as citizens and voters of the United States. Neither do we comprehend that the doom or salvation of the world lies in our hands and hearts and minds.

How can we make the most of our opportunity? We can do so by examining our own conscience and by always doing that which we know is right. Now more than ever before, individual honesty and integrity are needed. If every man in the world "cultivated his own garden" and cherished his own spirituality, war, oppression, dishonesty, and intolerance could not survive. It is every man's duty to be true to his own heart and his own conscience.

By following the sage advice of the elderly Polonius, we can insure our own happiness and the well-being of our nation. As individuals we are important. As pennies combine to make the dollar, so, too, do we combine to make the world!

CLUB ACTIVITIES

The best training for democratic living is the school. Here the future citizen opens his mind to an understanding of the past through the study of history and literature. Here he becomes acquainted with the language, customs, and manners of other lands. Here he finds the tools with which he will fashion his life and earn his daily bread. In the shop he learns to use his hands, and in the laboratory he scans new horizons and glimpses the wonders of the future.

His training as a person and as a citizen is further enriched by his participation in extra-curricular activities. In the clubs, which play so vital a part in inculcating the democratic spirit, he has the opportunity to take part in a program of his choice, to act in accordance with the rules of parliamentary procedure, and to participate in self-government.

Taunton High School is justifiably proud of its numerous clubs and organizations. It is also proud of and indebted to the teachers who act as sponsors of these clubs. To these teachers is accorded the appreciation of the student body.

SPORT REVIEW

By DANIEL REILLY

The cheers are beginning to die down now as the basketball and football equipment is put into mothballs until next year. Although the football squad didn't even come close to the record of the 1949 team, it did have a successful season, mainly because of its 7-6 victory over Coyle to retire the second Lion's Club trophy, symbolic of the City championship. The team's record of five wins, three losses, and one tie is a good one, especially when you realize that ten starters on the '49 team graduated.

With "Chip" Gouveia sprinting 60 yards for the first score of the game, Taunton downed a fighting Attleboro eleven, 13-0. The following week, runs by Medas and Gouveia and a pass from quarterback Ed Teixeira to Vin St. Pierre combined to defeat New Bedford "Voke", 27-6. Ed Medas stood out in a losing fight with Braintree on the home gridiron. Braintree, which has an undefeated season, walloped us to the tune of 34-7. The following week, despite Chip Gouveia's line-smashing, Taunton lost a heartbreaker to Marlboro, 7-6. Taunton ran away with the statistics, but what counts is the number of times a team can push the ball over the goal. Chip Gouveia was the big spark again as he led Taunton to a 32-0 victory over a very gauche Belmont. Chip scored on four points across the goal line.

The entire team deserves praise for the 7-6 victory over our intra-city rival, Coyle. On Taunton's first play from scrimmage, Ed Medas raced eighty yards to pay dirt. Chip Gouveia pulled over for the vital point. Defensive standouts were John Hall, Dave Scully, Jim Borges, and Vin St. Pierre in the line, and Ed Medas and Bob DeGrange on pass defense. With help from Vin St. Pierre, Bill "Moose" Silvia, and Jim Borges, Captain Dan Reilly waltzed in to block Coyle's placement attempt. In the following game, Durfee proved too much for Taunton, despite the efforts of Dave Scully, John Hall, and Ed Teixeira. The final score read Durfee 39, Taunton 14. The next week Taunton came close to being upset by Bart Leach & Co. of Fairhaven. Ed Medas received a leg injury on the kick-off, and as a result, Leach put Fairhaven into a 12-0 first period lead. Leach passed for the first and rushed over Fairhaven's two others, but was unable to find the range in his placement attempts. Chip Gouveia and Jack Silvia provided the scoring punch for Taunton, Chip scoring 13 and Jack 6.

On Thanksgiving morning, Taunton journeyed to M.I.T. Field, Cambridge, to battle a favored Cambridge Latin eleven. Jim Daly raced eighty yards on the opening kick-off to put Cambridge into an early lead. Taunton struck back, however, when Ed Medas legged the pigskin sixty yards for a score. Taunton struck again, with Chip Gouveia scoring seven more points, to enjoy a 13-7 halftime lead. The second-half battle was nip and tuck until, with two minutes of playing time left, the Cambridge passer uncorked a long spiral to his end, who snared it just inside the end zone. The tension was terrific as the two teams lined up for the placement try. Again Jim Borges, Vin St. Pierre, and "Moose" Silvia came through in a pinch to enable Dan Reilly to break through and block the kick. Taunton then took to the air as Ed Teixeira alternately chucked to Dave Scully and Vin St. Pierre. All was in vain, however, because time ran out while the team was moving the ball downfield. The final score, 13-13, ended the 1950 season.

The 1951 basketball squad showed a marked improvement over last year's, their record being nine victories and eight defeats. Lanky 6'6" center Bill Loeffler was Taunton's high scorer with 215 points, followed by Dick Parker, Vin St. Pierre, Bob Byrne, Ron Rankin, and Bob DeGrange with 169, 155, 128, 118, and 73 points, respectively.

Although losing the city series to Coyle, Taunton played fine basketball throughout the season. Much credit is due Coach Quintana for the team's splendid showing. Their record is as follows:

Opponent	Taunton	Opponent
Alumni	69	52
New Bedford Vocational	47	46
Attleboro	68	43
Fairhaven	41	57
New Bedford	41	39
Braintree	53	52
Durfee	51	42
Coyle	50	44
North Quincy	53	55
New Bedford Vocational	52	45
Fairhaven	44	46
Attleboro	52	53
Coyle	46	57
New Bedford	65	57
Durfee	43	47
Braintree	60	54
Coyle	42	53
Total Points	868	851

We regret the fact that Coach Hoague is leaving us after this year. As we bid him good bye and wish him Godspeed, we hope that his successor will do as fine a job as he has done.

Commendations are due "Ginny" Scully and the Cheerleaders, Nancy Perron and the Majorettes, and Bob Park and the Band. These people did a splendid job in maintaining that intangible something called school spirit which is so vital in the success of our athletic teams.

AVE ATQUE VALE

Our revels are now ended. These our students,
As I foretold you, were chrysalis, and
Now go forth to the world, to the wide world;
And, like the thousands who have gone before us,
With starry eyes and lovely dreaming,
With solemn purpose and true faith within,
Yea, all of which we inherit, go we hence;
But, our four years, too soon ended,
Emblazon roads ahead. We are such stuff
As dreams are made on, and our little lives
Are the hope of the world.

AN APPRECIATION

The Journal Staff of 1951 expresses its sincere gratitude to all who contributed, in any way, towards the success of this publication.

We are especially grateful to the following:

Miss Rosemary Corrigan and the Art department, for their excellent work for the Journal.

Mr. Northup of the Advertisers Engravers Company, for his aid in preparing the Journal.

Mr. Baacke of the C. A. Hack Company, for his advice and splendid cooperation.

Miss Marguerite C. Smith, faculty advisor, for her guidance and cooperation during the months of preparation.

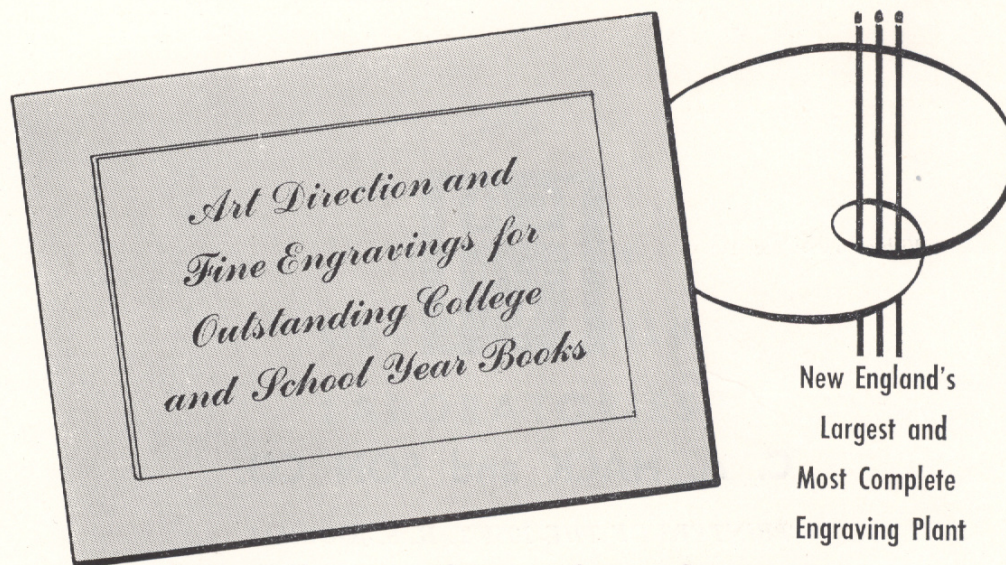

Miss Audrey Werner for her aid on the Quotation Board.

The Vantine Studios, for their excellent work in taking the various group pictures.

The Student Council, for their generosity in allowing the Journal Staff to participate in the Bazaar.

The advertisers and subscribers of the Journal, for helping to support our endeavor.

Mr. Bartlett's Familiar Quotations, to which we are indebted for our multitudinous quotations from William Shakespeare!

PERSONALIZED PORTRAITS and it's all done with

LIGHTS!

There's magic in lights . . . add a light here, place a spotlight there, and your portrait takes on the appearance of real form and individuality.

Your Vantine photographer knows how lighting effects can be best used . . . how easily they can reflect your personality.

Your Vantine photographer knows best how to secure the sharply etched photograph your engraver desires of the important senior year.

. . . The victories of the athletic teams. . . The brilliance of social occasions . . . The Prom . . . The plays . . . The debates . . . The expression of everyday life on the campus.

That personalized portraits by Vantine are important is attested to by the fact that over 300 schools and colleges repeatedly entrust their photographic work to Vantine.
